To Our Customers and Friends.

In extending our warm greetings and best wishes to our many customers and friends, we wish, first of all, to take this opportunity of once again expressing our thanks for their generous patronage, for the many letters of appreciation received enclosing charming photographs, long lists of prizes, cups and special awards won chiefly from stocks obtained from us. We sincerely trust that our new importations will give the same pleasure and satisfaction this season, for we have many new novelties to offer in all classes comprising the world's latest introductions.

We apologise for this late issue of our 1932 Catalogue — the delay was caused by the late flowering of some of our new importations. We prefer to flower these varieties before cataloguing to verify that they are all the raisers claim them to be, for often our brilliant sunshine is responsible for an entirely different tone of colour than that obtained overseas, or, as has been the case in some varieties, limp stems and no stamina in our climate.

We appreciate any suggestions to improve our cultural notes, in which we have endeavoured to cover a wider range this year, and to give more of our personal experience. For instance, we have found that 2½ ft. is too deep for manure to be placed in the hole, the dahlia being a shallow-rooting subject, in fact more surface-rooting. The feeding roots therefore do not penetrate so deeply. We have also determined that the bone meal is best mixed with the soil used to fill in the hole after manure has been placed, and that it is necessary to supply either muriate or sulphate of potash with the bone meal (as advised later in these notes); bone meal mixed with either of the two latter fertilisers makes a perfect dahlia food.

Our collection includes the best modern varieties (all stiff-stemmed) in gigantic decoratives, delicately petalled cactus, dainty miniature decorative, miniature pæony-flowered, and graceful pompon types, also the showy single-flowered "Coltness Gem" variety, which is a brilliant scarlet in colour, and excellent for bedding purposes, as well as various colours in Coltness Gem types. We thus cater for all tastes.

Most of the older standard varieties which we consider indispensable to any collection of dahlias will be found in our list.

Without exception the Dahlia is one of the most easily-grown of all garden flowers, and possibly gives a bigger return for the time, labour, and cost expended on its culture than any other plant in cultivation. By planting tubers early and growing late-rooted cuttings, we have dahlias in bloom seven to eight months in the year.

ORDER EARLY.

Stocks of some varieties are limited, therefore, to avoid disappointment, please place orders early, for they will be executed strictly in rotation.

TUBERS.

All orders for tubers will be supplied from divisions of field-grown tubers or pot roots. We have about 20,000 of the latter to offer this season. We do not sell from clumps of tubers which have bloomed all the season: these we burn and return the ash to the soil, which helps to supply the potash so necessary to successful dahlia culture — a hint which our customers could follow with benefit.

OUR GUARANTEE.

We endeavour to send out all varieties true to name; however, should mistakes occur we will gladly rectify these on receipt of a bloom of miss-named variety, either in Green Plants, the same season, or in Tubers the next. Our aim is to give every satisfaction.

All tubers are sprouted before despatch in order to reduce the number of failures to a minimum. We pack the tubers so that they travel perfectly by Agricultural Post.

Customers are warned to look out for cut worms destroying the shoots just under the soil and thereby rendering the tubers blind.

TERMS.

Any complaints or claims in regard to the quality of goods must be made immediately on receipt of same, or such complaints or claims cannot be entertained. As we cannot be held responsible for weather conditions, we therefore can give no warranty, implied or expressed, and will not be held responsible in any way for planting and forcing of bulbs, or roots supplied, or failures owing to conditions beyond our control.

A discount of 5 per cent. is allowed for settlement within 30 days of date of invoice, after which, accounts will be rendered strictly nett.

Orders from new or unknown clients must be accompanied by a Bank or other suitable reference, otherwise cash with order, or C.O.D.

Tubers will be fit for delivery as soon as sprouted, during September and October. Plants or rooted cuttings will be ready from November 15th onwards.

Packing and Postage at Cost.

Successful Dahlia Culture.

The dahlia is a most accomodating subject, thriving on any soil, provided it has been deeply dug, heavily manured, and well-drained.

SOIL TREATMENT AND TIME OF WORKING:—

Heavy and Medium Soils.—As a general rule, heavy and medium soils are best dug over during late autumn or early winter. Dig about two spits deep and be careful never to work soil when in a wet condition. Allow to lie fallow during winter so that the open and rough surfaces can be acted upon by the elements. Dig heavy soils with narrow spits, which keeps them more open.

Light Sandy Soils.—Contrary to the advice given for the working of medium and heavy soils, light soils are best prepared during early spring. The deeper they can be dug, naturally the long will they retain moisture.

It is best to allow a green crop of some kind, such as oats or rye, sown in autumn, or even weeds, to remain on the ground during winter. This will prevent the soil from being washed or blown away, as is often the case during heavy rain and wind storms. The green crop may be dug in two weeks before planting. It will add organic matter and supply the humus which is so necessary for binding light soils. If soil is poor, a dressing of stable or fowl manure may be spread to cover the weeds or rye crop.

Drainage.—Thorough drainage is one of the primary factors in growing dahlias successfully. Sandy soils are well taken care of in this respect, but heavy, clayey soils should have a quantity of coarse coal ashes dug into and mixed with the subsoil. Manure, straw or any stable litter thoroughly incorporated with the top soil, and a good dressing of coarse sand may also be added to clayey soils.

Liming.—Dahlias will thrive in a fairly acid soil. Lime should only be used every three years; it is seldom that soils have an inefficient quantity of lime for growing dahlias successfully. It is essential for new soils dug for the first time, or for soils rich in organic matter, but it is not to be recommended for soils in a high state of fertility or cultivation. Two pounds of agricultural lime to every 50 square yards is about correct.

Spacing and Manuring.—Holes into which to plant the dahlias may be dug during early spring, spacing them $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 ft. apart for tall growers; $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 ft. for medium growers; 2 to $2\frac{1}{2}$ ft. for the Mignon and Pompom varieties. Holes should be 2 ft. deep and 2 ft. wide. Mix a good foot of old manure with the bottom spit of soil and fill in with soil which has been thoroughly mixed with the following fertiliser:—

10 lbs. coarse bone meal.

1 lb. Muriate or Sulphate of Potash; never both: this is sufficient for ten dahlia holes.

Nitrate of Soda.—As dahlias do not require as much nitrogen as other crops, it is not advisable to give them Nitrate of Soda except in the case of individual plants where poor growth with pale foliage is noticed, when a weak solution may be given. This fertiliser if used to any extent is responsible for weak, forced growths, poor blooms and limp stems with plenty of foliage.

SITUATION:—The ideal situation for the dahlia is an open sunny one sheltered from wind, enjoying full morning sun, shaded from noon to 3 o'clock, and again afternoon sun until sunset. Never plant near hedges or under or near large trees: the roots of hedges and trees will keep the soil impoverished and too dry for any dahlia to succeed.

The correct situation has more to do with success in dahlia growing than many people realise. If our "ideal" situation cannot be given, rather give full sun, but if possible, shelter from wind.

CULTIVATION:—Constant cultivation cannot be over-rated: it is one of the chief essentials in all gardening operations. It means everything with dahlias, especially during a dry season. No matter how thoroughly your soil has been prepared or how suitable your situation may be, if thorough and systematic cultivation is neglected, the best tubers or plants will prove a failure. Soil around plants should be kept finely pulverised by means of hoeing; never allow to become hard and baked; always hoe after rain as soon as soil is dry enough to work.

In the early part of the growing season up to the time that plants produce buds, soil may be hoed to a depth of 2 to 3 inches, but after this, it should only be stirred to a depth of one inch, as the feeding roots will by this time have spread over a wide area near the surface, and deeper cultivation will injure them to the detriment of plant and blooms.

Hoeing should be done at least once a week: by this means weeds will be held in check as well as a soil mulch produced which will help to conserve moisture, and allow the air to penetrate the soil.

WATERING:—Dahlias are water-lovers and require plenty of water for their successful culture. While plants are small, the soil requires to be kept just moist, but as they grow they will need more and more water, until plants in full bloom will need a bucketful per day; that is, in dry sandy soils, in heavy soils, two to three waterings per week will be sufficient. Automatic overhead watering, of course, is ideal, but as few gardens have this facility, foliage should be well hosed at least twice a week, which will help to keep the foliage healthy and clean.

PLANTING TUBERS:—

Plant tubers in the middle of holes, 6 inches deep in light soils, and 4 inches in heavy soils. Place tubers flat on their sides, with the growing eyes pointing upwards. Cover at first with only 2 inches of soil, filling in as the plant grows.

PLANTING GREEN PLANTS:—

After removing moss and paper from plants, plant them with the top of the ball of soil about four to six inches deep. Cover with two inches of soil, and as the plant grows, fill in gradually. Place the ball of soil surrounding roots into water until soaked just before planting, and plant during late afternoon. Water thoroughly and protect for a few days by placing a couple of twigs with leaves on them around the plants.

It is advisable to place a paper or cardboard collar around the stem, extending from half an inch below the soil to one inch above, to protect plants from damage by cutworms.

DISBUDDING:—For cut flower, disbudding is absolutely necessary, in order to attain the desired long stem and large bloom. In fact, all plants are the better for disbudding as it lengthens the blooming period of the plant. As with the sweet pea, the more the blooms are cut the more will the plants produce. Remove all buds as soon as they can be handled, leaving only the large terminal bud, and allow an 18 inch stem at least. Never allow blooms to fade on plants.

STAKING:—All plants should be staked, for they are very brittle, breaking easily under the least provocation. It is a good plan to plant the stakes at the same time that tubers or plants are planted, growths can then be tied to them as they grow. Stakes should be planted first, driven well into the soil, and crowns of tubers placed about 2 ins. from stakes.

TREATMENT OF CUT BLOOM:—Dahlia blooms can be made to last from four to six days when cut, provided they are treated properly. The blooms are best cut during the late afternoon, the ends of the stems plunged into a pot or jug containing about an inch of boiling water. Leave in for one or two minutes, after which place into a bucket filled with cold water and left outside overnight. They may then be arranged in vases the following morning. A few crystals of washing soda added to the water will help to make the blooms last, or a pinch of powdered alum added to an ordinary vase: a teaspoonful to a large bowl. A tabloid of Asperin will be found to revive drooping blooms wonderfully!

FEEDING:—We have found the following top-dressing of manures of the greatest assistance in keeping plants healthy and blooms large. Apply early in February: Spread evenly to cover the surface of the soil around plants, about six inches from the stalks and rake in; the quantities given below are sufficient for feeding a dozen plants:—

1½ lbs. of Bone Flour.

5 lbs. finely powdered Sheep Manure.

6 lbs. Unleached Wood Ashes (ash which has not been exposed to moisture).

or ½ lb. Muriate or Sulphate of Potash (not both).

DIGGING AND STORING TUBERS:—After frosts have blackened plants, or they have died down naturally, cut off stalks to about 12 inches from the ground. After a week carefully lift by means of a garden fork, tie labels securely to tubers, allow them to thoroughly dry in the sun, and then store in a frost-proof shed, placing on beds of dry sand. In frost-free areas they may be left outside with safety, under a pergola, or tree, or any convenient place.

In areas subjected to heavy frosts it is advisable to leave tubers in the ground during winter and cover with about a foot of dry grass or any litter. Lift when all risk of frost is past. During early spring divide and replant immediately: this method reduces losses to a minimum.

DIVIDING CLUMPS:—Place clumps in a warm sunny place during early spring, and cover with soil. Keep watered, and as soon as eyes appear, carefully divide, allowing an eye or shoot to a tuber. These eyes will be noticed around the stem or crown of the clump. A tuber without a piece of crown on which the eyes appear is useless. Never allow more than one tuber to an eye — usually the smaller the tuber, the better the plant. Large clumps should never be planted entire. Cut off the base of tuber before planting. Cover tubers with wet soil, after being cut, until planted.

PESTS:—Dahlias must be kept growing to produce the best results. Should you notice your plants apparently standing still or making no new growth, carefully examine the leaves on the underside, and you will most likely find that the plant has been attacked by Red Spider.

Red Spider is a small red insect which covers the under-surface of the leaves with a dusty web, which slightly resembles spider-web. If there are violet plants nearby, you will soon find where the pest comes from, as it is almost impossible to keep Red Spider off violets during dry weather. This pest attacks the underside of the leaves causing them to become yellow and dry. Spray the underside of leaves with Nicotine Extract as directed on tins.

Thrip is a little pest which attacks the fibres of the newly-formed leaves, causing them to grow malformed and curled, and retarding the growth of the plants, especially while they are still small. Thrip is a very small grey or brown insect and is rather difficult to detect, but many plants are stunted and prove a failure because of the ravages of a few of this pest. Spray as for Red Spider.

Cutworms. This annoying pest is easily controlled by placing about a teaspoonful of poisoned bran bait around the plant (but not touching it) the evening after planting; remove next morning in case birds or poultry eat it.

- 2 Tablespoonsful brown sugar (dissolved) ;
- 1 Level teaspoonful Paris green ;
- Juice of an orange or equivalent in water ;
- 1 Quart bran or as much as will make a fairly dry mash.

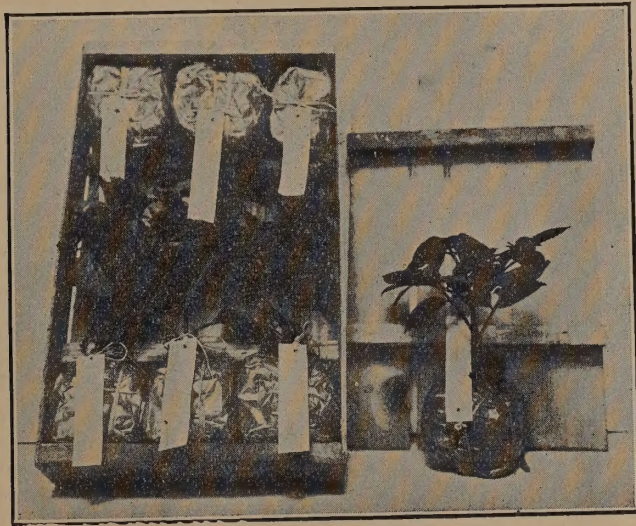

Red Ants. This pest has made its appearance in several districts in the Cape Province. It has been attacking delphiniums, antirrhinums, and dahlias, especially the green plants, as they appear to be more succulent than those grown earlier in the season from tubers.

The only real cure is to find the nest, and when found, to pour over the area where the nest exists half a pound of carbon bisulphide: this is a very heavy gas and should immediately be covered over with sacking and soil on top. As this gas is highly inflammable, it should never be exposed to a naked flame. Smoking strictly taboo. It may be obtained from any chemist, and is quite inexpensive. As the nest is usually most difficult to find, tobacco dust spread round the plants against the stem from ground level to tuber, will be found to be a perfect control for a period of about a month, when it should be renewed. Tobacco is quite harmless to vegetation; in fact, when decayed, it becomes a fertiliser containing a large amount of potash which is most beneficial to dahlia growth. The first symptom of a plant attacked by red ants is that the tips of the large leaves curl upwards. Any suspected plants should have the soil around the stem removed; if ants are present they will be found about two inches below the soil, barking the stem. Remove as many ants as possible with soil, place in tin, and pour on boiling water; then put tobacco dust around stem of plant as already described, and replace the soil.

Try Our Green Plants ! !

Note our style of packing, also the robust Green Plant with soil washed out of roots showing tubers already formed and a mass of strong roots.

We have specialised in green plants for several years and know how to raise them, how to grow them, and how to pack them successfully in specially designed boxes, which are made on our premises. to travel in safety to all parts of the Union and Southern Rhodesia. We guarantee our plants to be strong, healthy and well-rooted.

New and Recent Introductions of Decorative and Hybrid-Decorative Dahlias.

Owing to the stock of some of the newest varieties being limited we are obliged to book orders for these SUBJECT TO BEING UNSOLD.

D—Decorative. H.D.—Hybrid Decorative.

A. G. L. Hellyer—D., a grand new novelty of 1931 English introduction. The massive blooms are composed of broad, bluntly-pointed petals which will appeal to lovers of size, and those requiring something new and unusual in colouring, the latter being somewhat difficult to describe, for it must be seen to be fully appreciated, being mainly crimson as a background and heavily suffused with a rosy tint. Stems strong and stiff, carrying the regal flower perfectly erect. Height 3 to 4 ft. 1/6

Ami Cochet—D., a rich deep crimson decorative, medium-large in size. The perfectly-shaped shaggy blooms are held to face straight up on long, wiry stems. A beautiful variety; very free-blooming. Height 4 to 5 ft. 2/6

Iris Kaempferi.

IRIS KAEMPFERI. — This gorgeous Iris which hails from Japan, is most decorative and popular wherever grown. It is perfectly hardy and thrives best in a sunny, fairly moist situation; it can also be successfully grown in tubs which are well-drained, filled with a richly-manured soil and kept well saturated during the growing and flowering seasons. It is admirably adapted for planting on the edge of streams or to border ponds. This Iris dislikes lime in any form. The Kaempferi is unsurpassed for cut flower purposes, lasting from 6 to 8 days in the house. The beautiful flat blooms are carried erectly on long, elegant, wiry stems, 2 to 3 ft. in height, to face upwards. The colours comprise the most exquisite of pale shades of pink and mauve as well as rich blues and purples variously blotched or veined, also the purest of whites.

Plants ready for planting from early August to October.

12/0 per dozen, Unnamed.

Stocks supplied are from named varieties imported from Japan: names lost.

Mandarin.

Iris Germanica.

The bearded or Flag Iris are now obtainable in a wonderful range of colourings. It is of tall, robust growth, and thrives well in any soil, if given a fairly dry, well-drained position. Plenty of lime should be incorporated into the beds before planting. All varieties are perfectly hardy and very free-blooming. They are most decorative for both house and garden, lasting well as a cut flower.

Acclimatised Gladioli

The glorious Gladioli should find a place in every flower garden, be it large or small. They make gorgeous displays, massed in a bed or even grouped in clumps of a dozen. They are indispensable in the herbaceous as well as in the annual border. For cut flower purposes, they are unsurpassed, lasting in the house until the last bud has opened. Their culture is of the easiest, and they are practically disease-free. Corms ready for delivery from July to September.

Large, acclimatised corms of a mixture of the best large-flowered varieties to offer at 2/0 per dozen, or 12/0 per 100 mixed.

Named varieties, 2/6 per dozen; 15/0 per 100.

Herbaceous and Other Hardy Plants.

Plants ready for planting during early spring
(August and September).

Phlox (Perennial).

These gorgeous flowers are most decorative wherever grown, whether in border paths or massed in beds of one colour. They thrive in a rich friable soil with plenty of moisture. Flowering stems reach 3 ft. in height when grown in partial shade.

Named Varieties, 7/6 per dozen.

Our Selection, 5/0 per dozen.

Flora Hornung.—Large bloom, white with carmine centre.

La Mauve.—Pale rose, white centre, rose eye.

Peter Readman.—One of the best; a glowing salmon-scarlet with a dark crimson eye.

Jos. Gerbeaux.—An exquisite pink, medium-sized bloom.

Asters, Perennial

(Michaelmas Daisies).

This hardy perennial plant thrives in all parts of our country, from the highest frosty areas to the warm coastlands. It comprises a variety of colours as well as heights, and grows in any soil and situation.

Recent Varieties, 9d. each; 5/0 per dozen.

Antolia.—A beautiful pink with white ring and centred yellow. Height 1 ft.

B. S. Renger.—A lovely mauve-pink unsurpassed for cutting. Height 2½ ft.

Climax.—Still one of the very best; tall growing bearing trusses of exceptionally large, daisy-like, pale blue flowers. Height 5 ft.

Lovely.—A soft bluish-pink. Height 3½ ft.

White Heather.—The popular white, resembling white heather. Height 4 ft.

Feltham Blue.—Very large fine blue. Height 2 ft.

Anemone Japonica.

Whirlwind—For a wealth of bloom during autumn, this Anemone stands supreme. It thrives best in partial shade sheltered from wind. We have fine plants of this pure white single variety, which reaches a height of about 4 ft. Plants from June to August.

6d. each; 5/0 per dozen.

Alstromeria.

This glorious perennial should be in every garden. It is of simple culture, thriving equally well in full sunlight or partial shade. Trusses of blooms, however, grow taller in the latter situation. Requires a deeply-trenched, well-manured soil. Plant the fleshy roots 8 inches deep.

—Aurantiaca.—A large, gorgeous, golden variety; most free-blooming. Height 3 ft. 7/6 per dozen.

—splendens. — Tall-growing variety; large, brilliant, orange, blotched red; extra fine. Height 3 to 4 ft. 7/6 per dozen.

Helenium Autumnale.

A beautiful Helenium, flowering during late autumn. The great trusses of bloom are composed of numerous golden-yellow flowers, with dark centres. Height 3 to 4 ft. 2/0 per dozen.

Tuberoses.

These delightful, fragrant bulbs are most effective when planted in the herbaceous border amongst other bulbs of brilliant colourings; or planted in a bed by themselves, bordered by green grass, they are lovely. Grown in tubs they thrive excellently — therefore no one need be debarred from enjoying their rich fragrance or exquisite beauty. The blooms last for weeks on the plants. Plant as soon as all risk of frost is past.

Bulbs from August to October.

Excelsior Pearl.—Large, double-flowered variety. The beautiful wax-like blooms are carried on graceful stems, 2½ ft. long. 2/6 dozen; 15/0 per 100.

Barborton Daisy

Tall, large-flowered vieux-rose coloured bloom; very free-flowering. One of the very best.

1/6 per plant; 12/0 per dozen.

Alstroemeria aurantiaca.

Bloom of Phyllocactus.

Shasta Daisy Imperial.

The largest of all Shastas, blooms measuring up to seven inches across. Excellent for borders or massed in beds. Height 3 ft. 2/0 per dozen.

Physostegia.

This grand and free-flowering perennial thrives well in all areas. The tubular blooms borne on long-branched trusses resemble heather in form, and equals it for lasting qualities. One of the best cut flowers. Height 2 to 3 ft.

—Virginica rosea.—A grand mauvy-pink variety.

3d. each; 2/0 per dozen.

Phyllocactus.

This interesting and beautiful Cactus makes an ideal stoep plant. It thrives luxuriously in partial shade and damp atmosphere, and requires a well-drained, good, loamy, porous soil. It blooms during spring and early summer, the plants producing their large, delicately-petalled superb blooms in profusion, measuring up to 10 inches in diameter. All cacti are best grown in pots or tins, as they seem to enjoy having their roots confined.

Our collection comprises 35 varieties of the latest hybrids from Germany. These plants have blooms of many colours, White, Bronze, Lilac Pink, shades of Red and combinations of the above colours. One of the most beautiful stoep plants.

Well rooted plants 2/6 to 5/0 each.

Violets

This fragrant and popular subject should find a place in every garden, big or small. It is ideal for bordering paths or beds, and excellent for growing on shaded banks.

Prince of Wales.—Large-flowered, dark purple variety, 1/0 per dozen, 6/0 per 100.
